CHANGE FROM THE BOTTOM UP

OUR MISSION

- 2 To raise community awareness that “basic human needs” include diapers, period supplies, and incontinence products and that these needs are not being met for individuals and families living in poverty;
- 3 To advocate for policy reform so that diapers, period supplies and incontinence products are included in the definition of and provision for the “basic human needs” of families.

A LETTER FROM OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends,

I am grateful to be writing to you at a time when, it seems, the worst of the COVID-19 pandemic is behind us. As I look back on the 2021 fiscal year, which was at times a whirlwind, I am incredibly proud of the work The Diaper Bank of Connecticut accomplished, even amid all the uncertainty and challenges.

As you'll see on these pages, the need in our community over the past year was – and continues to be – at an all-time high. We distributed more infant and toddler diapers than ever before. We also expanded our distribution of period products and incontinence supplies for youths and adults, because we know basic health needs are critical throughout people's lifespans.

It was also an exciting year in terms of our advocacy work. Among our successes, our advocacy resulted in more state funding for The Diaper Bank and growing awareness of period poverty in our state.

I am so proud of all we've done, but there is so much more to do. We know we are meeting just a small fraction of the need in our community; that too many among us worry about how they will afford diapers, incontinence supplies and period products. These are basic health needs that no one should have to go without, and our fight to bring equal access to everyone continues.

Thank you for your continued support.

Janet Stolli Altano

Executive Director, The Diaper Bank of Connecticut

VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT: JOY REN

When she was just 14 years old, about to begin her freshman year of high school, Joy Ren testified before the Connecticut legislature in favor of having freely accessible period products in schools. Now 16, ending period poverty and bringing awareness to period stigma continue to be priorities for the Wilton High School student.

This past spring, Ren spearheaded “Humans with Periods,” a social media campaign supported by The Diaper Bank in which people were invited to share first-person accounts of stigma, stereotypes and hardships surrounding periods. It can be an uncomfortable conversation for many, but Ren helped shine a spotlight on it, with dozens of people sharing their experiences.

“Period awareness and destigmatization, along with proper funding to make menstrual products freely accessible, is crucial. Unlike many of the necessary commodities in our everyday lives — toilet paper, soap, and running water — period products are perceived as a luxury item,” she says. “I have been lucky enough to have access to menstrual products, but thousands of menstruators do not, often relying on unsanitary alternatives to keep their clothes from soiling.”

Ren plans to continue working with The Diaper Bank of Connecticut and advocating for increased access to period products.

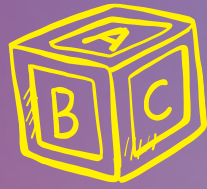

“I’m inspired by organizations like the Diaper Bank of Connecticut, which get the products to the people that need them the most, bumping us closer to period equity,” she says. “These realities are painful. But it’s the human in all of us, those who have the resources, to find ways to help out those who don’t.”

Period awareness and destigmatization, along with proper funding to make menstrual products freely accessible, is crucial.

OUR PROGRAMS IN ACTION

Rise ADULT INCONTINENCE PRODUCTS

Through our Rise program, we distribute adult incontinence products to those in need, with the help of our strategic network of community partners.

Over the past year, we significantly expanded the number of partner agencies we work with to get these items to individuals who need them — and we will continue to expand capacity.

Incontinence is a common problem among older adults but many don't seek help for it, partly out of embarrassment.

For low-income adults, cost can be a major barrier to accessing incontinence supplies, and going without them can bring physical and emotional consequences.

Shine

YOUTH INCONTINENCE PRODUCTS

The past year also brought growth in our Shine program, which provides incontinence products to youths between the ages of 3 and 20 who need them due to medical conditions. We are continuing to expand our impact and footprint in this area, continually adding new community partners.

Incontinence products for youths can be costly for families, especially those already struggling to make ends meet. Coverage for such products is limited in Connecticut, and items can cost families between $180 and $215 a month out of pocket. Adding to the financial strain, some parents raising youths with this type of medical need have to reduce their work hours, or stop working altogether, to care for them.

Beam PERIOD SUPPLIES

Our Beam program, which distributes period supplies to people in need, continues to grow. As we learn more about period poverty and its effects on our community, we are engaging more community partners in our work.

No one should have to worry about affording tampons or pads, but too many do. Those who can't buy an adequate supply sometimes resort to using toilet paper, rags or incontinence products. Often, lacking period products causes individuals to miss out on work, school or social commitments. We continue to raise awareness about this issue and advocate for more equitable access to period supplies.

We are proud to be the Connecticut chapter for
